The strange automobile license which Fred H. Zolin is attaching to his car identifies him as a radio amateur with sending and receiving equipment which makes his vehicle a mobile communications unit. Zolin, who lives at 2443 N. Cramer st., is president of the Milwaukee Radio Amateurs' club. The licenses are issued, under a state law passed last year, to certain amateurs who possess the proper equipment and who have passed examinations. They replace the usual vehicle licenses. The amateur's station call letters are stamped on the license. The first letter, W or K, designates a radio amateur. The numeral 9 indicates the home district of the individual. The following two or three letters identify the operator. Zolin said that his club's mobile wing would be available for public use in any type of emergency which affects communications. —Journal Staff
